A. The Plaintiff is Threatened With Irreparable Harm. The Plaintiff can be heard on a motion for a preliminary injunction. In particular, as shown in the attached Declaration In Support of Plaintiff's Motion For a Temporary Restraining Order and Preliminary Injunction addressing the harrassment and Threatening conduct of staff here at FCI Schuylkill towards the Plaintiff causing undue hardship and irreparable injury beginning on or about November 9th 2020 stemming from a respectful notice to staff. See Exhibit "A" B. The Balance of Hardships Favors the Plaintiff. The continuous har cassment from staff, specifically (SIS) and Correctional Officer D. Campbell, as well as threats will inflict undue hardship upon plaintiff.

Relief Sought

To issue a temporary restraining order pending a hearing and determination of plaintiff's motion for a preliminary injunction. The restraining order sought will restrain defendant Warden Scott Finley from allowing staff to harrass, threaten, and use disrespectful, abusive, and obscene language towards Plaintiff. Grounds For Relief It is essential that the court issue the requested temporary restraining order to prevent immediate and future irreparable harm and injury because the potential injury to the defendant by the temporary restraining order could not possibly counterbalance the irreparable injury to the plaintiff if the defendant's proposed and intended conduct is not restrained

On March 23, 1992, the United States Supreme Court affirmed the fact that prison guards and officials can be held personally liable for retaliatory or harassment searches or searches leaving an inmate's cell in disarray. See Scher v. Engelke, 943 F. 2d 921 (8th Cir. 1991), cert. denied, — U.S.—, 112 S. Ct. 1516, 117 L.ed 652 (1992). Scher held that the scope of Eighth Amendment Protection is broader than mere infliction of physical pain.

PRISON GUARDS AND OFFICIALS

You have now been given notice of clearly established law and Constitutional Rights. Retaliation and Harassment is Illegal!
Respect and professionalism is required. After your shakedown of this cell, please leave it in the condition you found it.

Best Regards

Philbert Cole
